nue grounds too wet to play. The game was postponed until this afternoon, when the Cardinals and "Phillies" will begin a series of three games. Although the Cardinals have been losing games of late with undue regularity, their improved showing in Chicago leads the admirers of the "Ducklings" to hope for better work while the team is home.

Dunleavy, the newcomer, is a neat appearing chap. Of medium height, he has the broad shoulders and deep chest that imply herculean strength. This is a pitcher's best asset.

Speaking of Dunleavy's good showing against the Chicago team last Sunday, one of the members of the Cardinal tribe said: of the members of the Cardinal tribe said:

That fellow is certainly the goods. He will certainly make good. He had the Chicago team guessing throughout that contest. From the first until the last inning he had them breaking their backs going after his shoots and benders. Several of the Coits in disgust at their failure to hit Dunleavy tossed their bats at the ball. Donovan was silent on the showing of his team, but he still has confidence that they will shortly do better.

While in Chicago, a gold watch was presented to Davy Brain, Donovan's third baseman, by his admirers in his home city.

BRAIN PLAYING GOOD.

BRAIN PLAYING GOOD.

While on the road, Brain has been putting up a very fast game of ball. His hitting has fallen off a bit, but Davy has been batting in the hardest kind of luck. He has been meeting the ball, but his drives usually go straight at some fielder or else give an opposing player an opportunity to distinguish himself by some sensational fielding play.

In the field he has aroused much favorable comment from the critics in the East. Throughout the circuit the Chicago bay has made a favorable impression, and he is practically a fixture on the local National League team.

With a two weeks stand at St. Louis the Cardinals should show much improved form. BRAIN PLAYING GOOD.

With a two weeks' stand at St. Louis the Cardinals should show much improved form.

It can be said, however, that they are not the only team in the National League that has had a streak of hard luck. Cincinnati lost nine straight games, yet few persons who understand the great national game doubt that the Reds will be up close at the top of the heap when the season closes.

No one expected the Tribe of Donovan to win the National League pennant. Barly in the season they appeared to be a first-division team, and as the season is still young a good strong brace will land the Cardinals among the first four in Harry Pullam's organization.

In to-day's game all the regulars will be at their old places. With Barclay, Smoot and Donovan in the outfield and Brain, Williams, Farreii and Hackett or Nichols in the infield the team should commence to strike its gait.

the infield the team should commence to strike its gait.

The department on Donovan's team that looks the worst is the pitching staff. With a bunch of twirlers that present nothing but speed, backed by no mental effort, the team can hardly expect to win.

"Chick" Stahl, the Boston American's fielder, is still in St. Louis under Doctor Starkloff's care. The injury he sustained is still bothering him, but the chances are he will soon be back in the game.

Although O'Brien, who has been "subbing" in his place, has played a fast game he is not in the same class with the great "Chick." Now that Boston is leading the van. Stahl's absence will be felt worse than ever. Although the fans in St. Louis do not want to see Boston beat St

HEMPHILL LAID UP.

HEMPHILL LAID UP.

Hemphill has been keeping Stahl company. Charley's injured foot is incased in a plaster of paris bandage, and with Stahl he makes daily visits to Starkloff's office. "Hemphy" injury will probably keep him out of the game for at least two weeks.

At Williamsport, Pa., there is a pitcher named Lush who has created quite a sensation by his work in the box. Last Friday he pitched a game against the Pittsburg "Champions" and let them hit the earth with only one hit. Besides accomplishing the feat of allowing the Pirates but one safety, he shut them out with a team of minor leaguers behind him.

Elmer Davis, who has been playing left field for the Altoona, Pa., team, has signed to play with the Pittsburg team. He will take Fred Clark's place in the outfield. Clark has been ill for some time. Altoona gets Pitcher Veil in exchange for Davis. This name Davis is now becoming rather common in baseball circles, there being no less than four in the major organizations.

FOR APPROACHING FLOOD.

In Carondelet the water has risen higher than in years, but most of the property of any value has been removed to places of safety and the same precautions taken to protect the houseboats. At the Wiggins

Ferry dock station, on Marceau street, the water has encroached upon the freight yards and much effort was necessary to get the property out of the way.

Continued rising of the river will mean the flooding of some cellars which are now thought to be safe, but there is not a single house along the whole river front considered in danger from the present flood, and no loss of life will be possible in St. Louis within a fraction of an inch of the darger line—thirty feet; showing a rise of more than two feet in the preceding twenty-four hours. The following flood warning was issued by the United States Weather Bureau:

"The Missouri will continue to rise rapidly and dangerous flood stages are indicated. ♦ for all points south of Karsas City for several days. The Mississippi will continue to ♦ rise rapidly in the St. Louis district, and, with the water now in sight, a crest . ♦ stage of 34 feet, or higher, is probable by the last of the week. Precautionary ♦ measures to protect property likely to be affected by such a stage should be taken. Heavy rains continue in the Missouri and Central Mississippi valleys. Forces of men sent out early yesterday | flood the basements of several factories near morning to remove lumber, wood and other material stored along the river front were working waist deep in water last night, so rapid was the rise of the stream. Some property, which could not be saved, was picked up by the fast encroaching current and swept away with the drift. Occupants of the houseboats along the river bank between Angelrodt and Bremen streets, in what is known as "Little Oklahoma," have been preparing several days for the floods and yesterday most of them had their crafts securely anchored with slacked ropes that will permit of the water lifting them to nearly any heighth. Dwellers in the houseboats fear most the driftwood, which is coming down the fast swelling stream in increasing volume. If their frail boats are caught in a jam of heavy logs there is danger of them being crushed to pieces, but precaution in most instances has been taken to turn the drift from the shore at places where the houseboats have anchored.

THREE THOUSAND PERSONS

LIVE ALONG LEVEE Probably 3,000 persons live in houseboats along the levee extending from the Chain of Rocks to Jefferson Barracks, and all of those who remain in their quarters are more or less at the mercy of the flood, but few of them have any fear of loosing their lives. The most of them feel as safe affoat as with their cabins perched on their old foundations, and yesterday many of the inhabitants of "Little Oklahoma" were setting in their boats complacently watching the roaring water.

houseboat settlement in North St. Louis is the largest on the river front, some 200 persons composing the population of "Little Oklahoma." They did not appear disturbed when told that a rise of from four to six feet was expected in the river.

"Let 'er come," said an old-timer, who had his boat safely anchored to the Burlington Railroad track at Lesperance street. "I have enough slack in my towline to lift 'er to the op 'o the water tower. Floods don't scare me." EXPECT PRESENT RISE

TO SUBMERGE RAILROAD. While the rain was pouring down yesterday afternoon most of the village's male population gathered in the only saloon, located in the largest boat. Here they talked of floods, past and present, known in local history.

"None 'o them 'll come up to the one we had in '44," said the oldest. "It'll come over the railroad tracks out yonder if it keeps up this way another twenty-four hours." said another. "Last time it did that," joined in the bar tender," was in 1892. None 'er youse fellows was missing then, and I guess you'll all be around when this is over " With a rise of six feet in the river at St. Louis the Burlington Railroad tracks will be inundated nearly all the way from Angelrodt street to the high grounds. If the water laps over the railroad tracks it will noon rainstorm.
